

Two EMU Interior Architecture Department Celebrations In One Night

The Eastern Mediterranean University (EMU) Faculty of Architecture, Interior Architecture Department organized an AQAS (Agency for Quality Assurance through Accreditation of Study Programs) Accreditation Certificate and a 2015-2016 Spring Term Honour and High Honour Certificate Ceremony.

The ceremony took place at the Famagusta Walled City Association (MASDER) building located in the Famagusta Walled city. Speaking at the said event EMU Interior Architecture Department Chair Prof. Dr. Uğur Ulaş Dağlı noted that they are very pleased to be celebrating two important events, thanking all in attendance. Touching upon the importance of AQAS, Prof. Dr. Dağlı stated that EMU is the first university in Turkey and the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus whose Interior Architecture Faculty has AQAS accreditation (headquarters in Germany).

In his speech AQAS Accreditation International Relations Representative

Ronny Heintz congratulated the EMU Faculty of Architecture for its success handing Prof. Dr. Uğur Ulaş Dağlı the accreditation certificate valid until 2019.

Dean of the EMU Faculty of Architecture Prof. Dr. Özgür Dinçyürek thanked all who played a part in the event coming to fruition, congratulating the Interior Architecture students about to receive their Honour and High Honour certificates. After the speeches, the students were handed their Honour and High Honour certificates by EMU Rector Prof. Dr. Necdet Osam, Vice Rector Prof. Dr. Özgür Eren and Architecture Faculty academicians.

Towards the end of the night a musical performance from EMU Education Faculty, Fine Arts Department academic staff member Erkan Dağlı and music teacher Rana Uluçay took place. The night came to an end with a cocktail after the musical performance.

EMU Health Sciences Faculty Member Becomes an Editor for a Famous Journal

Eastern Mediterranean University (EMU) Health Sciences Faculty, Department of Nutrition and Dietetics academic staff member Prof. Dr. H. Tanju Besler undertook the duty of an issue editor for the 'Cliniques of Turkey, Journal of Nutrition and Dietetics-Special Topics 2016'. Prof. Dr. Besler performed as an editor for the 'Nutrition and Immune System Special Edition' of the said journal ensured that 22 different articles, written by academicians from distinguished universities were published. The special edition also featured the articles Breast Milk's Effects on the Immune System and Microbiota written by EMU Department of Nutrition and Dietetics academic staff member Assist. Prof. Dr. Seray Kabaran and the article Adipose Tissue and Immune System Interactions: The Potential Impacts of Obesity and Energy Limitations produced by EMU Department of Nutrition and Dietetics academic staff member Assist. Prof. Dr. Ceren Gezer.

In the editor's note Prof. Dr. Besler drew attention to the fact that energy inside of food, nutritional elements, structures that aren't nutritional elements but have important functions in the organism, and biologically active elements (such as phytochemicals) can directly affect the immune system or an immune response. In addition, he noted that food can indirectly affect the immune system by affecting other systems (hypothalamus and pituitary gland) and organs (adipose tissue, small intestine). Prof. Dr. Besler noted that the hormones secreted by these organs depend on the metabolic response to the energy received as well as the quality and amount of the nutritional element. These hormones can affect the activity of other immune system cell groups via adipokines and special intestinal cytokines.

EMU Health Sciences Faculty Dean Prof. Dr. Mehtap Malkoç Provides Information About World Disability Day & EMU Center For Healthy Living the improvement of general physical health also stating that in order to improve the living standards of people with disabilities, absolute regulations must be made both in buildings and in environmental architecture.

Throughout the world and in our country, the 3rd of December World Disability Day should be viewed as an opportunity to integrate disabled citizens into the community whilst ensuring that they have equal rights like other citizens. Prof. Dr. Malkoç noted "Protective approaches that could prevent disabilities must be emphasized as well as opportunities provided to improve the physical and mental state of disabled individuals. The 3rd of December is a day of awareness that should also increase social involvement rights of disabled people such as the right for education and employment."

The value a community gives to its disabled citizens and their family is an important indicator how developed the community is. For this reason Prof. Dr. Malkoç stated that state policies and health services must be developed, precautions increased and community education valued. Prof. Dr. Malkoç also stated that by changing the community perspective and ensuring the social participation of disabled individuals by minimizing transportation problems and carrying out architectural arrangements, productivity of disabled individuals will be increased. Prof. Dr. Malkoç concluded by highlighting the responsibility of government representatives and non-governmental organizations in increasing this productivity.

EMU Visual Arts And Visual Communication Design Department's Artistic Activity

'The fish doesn't think..Because fish knows everything'

Taking place under the coordinatorship of Assoc. Dr. Senih Çavuşoğlu, Eastern Mediterranean University (EMU) Faculty of Communication Visual Arts and Visual Communication Design Department postgraduate students organised "Fish doesn't think.. Because fish knows everything" artistic activity within the framework of Workshop- I course.

The students prepared their written/visual projects by using "Guerilla Art" which uses elements of light and shadow to confront people at the most unexpected times and places.

Guerilla Art, by definition, generally embraces social and political matters and not only informs the society but also shares ideas related to those matters. The students created interesting and creative projects based on catchword "Fish doesn't think, because fish knows everything" taken from Bosnian director Emir Kusturica's movie "Arizona Dream". The projects were exhibited all day long at Famagusta Public Beach on 7 December 2016.

"Fish doesn't think! Because fish knows everything."

Yes, it is worth to 'think' on it...

EMU Visual Arts and Visual Communication Design Department Vice Chair Assoc. Dr. Senih Çavuşoğlu stated his views about the organisation as follows:

"Actually this is an inner journey based on the aim of living in the moment by not being too concerned about the future and the past and living the only reality, "the moment" without having any fears and worries. It is about living the life without overthinking, over calculating, and without consulting our memory which is the mechanism of collecting codes, clichés and stereotypes since the day we were born.

There are plenty of things that we are doing without ever feeling the need to think about it. Do you know why? Because there are no fears beneath!

Fish doesn't think, because fish knows everything...

Yes, because it is the people who think. The moment when the fears step in, people start thinking. Eventually, we choose new and provisory roles for ourselves based on our fears and then live our lives accordingly.

"City And Architecture II" Activity Takes Place at EMU Faculty of Architecture

Taking place under the moderatorship of Housing Education Research and Advisory Center (HERA-C) Executive Board Member Assist. Prof. Dr. Afet Çeliker, the activity "City and Architecture II" took place at Eastern Mediterranean University (EMU) Architecture Faculty. The themes of the said event were Emigration – War – Property problems and the event aimed to share the accumulated university knowledge regarding housing with all involved in the housing sector. Writer-director Aliye Ummanel and actress Hatice Tezcan were present at the event to share their professional experiences with the attendees, not only in architecture but also in the field of art. The event was attended by a crowded group of people and took place in a warm and interactive environment.

EMU HERA-C Chair, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Kağan Günçe stated that the theatre play 'House' which was staged by the Nicosia Municipality Theatre reveals the 'emigration, war and property problems of today and the near past, which society is still questioning'. Assoc. Prof. Dr. Günçe also noted that the posters and the press reflections of 'House' and of other plays written and directed by Aliye Ummanel are being exhibited at Architecture Faculty Exhibition Hall until the 6th of December 2016.

“Europeanization of Political Discourses on Discrimination” Seminar Takes Place at EMU

A seminar titled “Europeanization of Political Discourses on Discrimination” took place at Eastern Mediterranean University (EMU), Department of Political Science and International Relations (PSIR).

The seminar was headed by Vice-Chair of EMU PSIR Department Assist. Prof. Dr. Umut Bozkurt and introduced the researched results of PSIR Department academic staff member Assist. Prof. Dr. Berna Numan’s research, which highlighted the EU’s setting rule and principle for any discrimination case within the European Union.

Assist. Prof. Dr. Berna Numan, started her presentation by explaining the enactment process of the EU anti-discrimination law in 2000, based on the 13th clause of the Amsterdam Treaty. Assist. Prof. Dr. Berna Numan’s research investigated the change of discourse in numerous EU countries between 1996 and 2000 by using content analysis. The research yielded findings about vertical and horizontal Europeanization.

Assist. Prof. Dr. Berna Numan noted that the data she collected for her research verified the ‘misfit’ hypothesis which is one of the prominent theories in European Integration literature. In other words, her research confirmed the politicizing of the integration process to EU law, for countries that are having problems with accord to law. The seminar that had a large attendance ended with Assist. Prof. Dr. Numan answering audience’s questions.
