EMU Academic Staff Member Delivers a Presentation Titled 'Arif Nihat Asya and Cyprus'

Important poets of the Republic Period Turkish Literature Arif Nihat Asya was commemorated on the 42nd anniversary of his passing at a program organised at İstanbul Küçükçekmece Sefaköy Culture and Arts Center. Eastern Mediterranean University was represented at the said organisation by EMU Education Faculty academic staff member Assist. Prof. Dr. Ertuğrul Aydın, who delivered a presentation titled 'Arif Nihat Asya and Cyprus'. During his speech, Assist. Prof. Dr. Ertuğrul Aydın stated that Arif Nihat Asya worked in Cyprus at Nicosia Turkish High School (formerly known as Celal Bayar High School) between 24 November 1959 and 31 August 1961.

Assist. Prof. Dr. Ertuğrul Aydın also added that the poet published a book titled 'Kıbrıs Rübaiileri' upon his return to Turkey in 1964. Stating that Arif Nihat Asya always kept his bonds with Cyprus, Assist. Prof. Dr. Ertuğrul Aydın put forth that even the poet's last poem written in his deadbed was about Cyprus.

EMU Academic Staff Member Fedai Provided Information On The Turkish Cypriot Literature

Harid Fedai, part-time academic staff of the Department of Turkish Language and Literature at Eastern Mediterranean University Faculty of Arts and Sciences attended a symposium entitled "International Literary Festival" with a paper titled "Turkish Cypriot Literature and The Pioneer Female Poets". The said event was organized by Cyprus-Balkans-Eurasia Turkish Literature Institute (KIBATEK) in İzmir between 1 and 4 December 2016.

In this study, Fedai stated that adoption of Atatürk's principles by young Turkish Cypriots in the late 1930s led them to organize several events in which women also took part. Fedai highlighted that Atatürk's principles encouraged women's participation in literary events in such a period where there was a belief that dealing with literature and writing poems were not female things. Fedai also stated that poems of female poets began to appear in the literary journals after 1942, when there was advancement in the press. Fedai introduced Pembe Marmara, Emine Otan (Engin Gönül), Neclâ Salih Subhi and Urkiye Mine Balman, all of whom are considered as the mothers of Turkish Cypriot female poets who flourished on the land of Cyprus in the Republican Era. Fedai's study is important in terms of Turkish Cypriot female poets' overseas appearance which was heartened by the Republican Era.
