EMU-ATAUM PRESIDENT ASST. PROF. DR. GÖKTÜRK RELEASES A STATEMENT ON THE ANNIVERSARY OF ATATÜRK'S DEATH

Eastern Mediterranean University Atatürk Research and Application Centre (EMU-ATAUM) President Asst. Prof. Dr. Turgay Bülent Göktürk released a statement to commemorate Mustafa Kemal Atatürk on the 81st anniversary of his death. The statement reads as follows:

As a result of the War of Independence, Turkey's miracle and his numerous reforms, Mustafa Kemal Atatürk is one of the most outstanding historical figures. As the saviour of the Turkish nation and the founder of the Republic of Turkey, in his short life of 57 years Atatürk has accomplished more than what is regarded possible for any mortal. In the dark days of the First World War, he became a national hero for the Turkish Nation and a ray of hope for other nations under captivity. Despite great poverty and hardship, he started the National Struggle to save his nation that was trying to be destroyed and became a symbol of independence after victory was obtained by pulling the nation together.

On his burned and devastated homeland he established a modern republic and quickly formed good relations with nations he had previously fought against. The Republic of Turkey became a well- respected state across the world. Atatürk also worked hand in hand with the people in order to carry out the reforms that would establish the foundations of modernization. Atatürk didn't peruse impossible dreams. The great leader obtained all of his inspiration from scientific truths. Whilst ideologies that led to death of millions have been buried in the dark pages of history, Atatürk's System of Thought is alive and well. It continues to be a guide for the Turkish Nation.

The Turkish Cypriot community is an indispensable part of this Nation which sees Atatürk as a saviour and continues to move forward in line with his system of thought. The Turkish Cypriot community accepted the reforms made in the Republic of Turkey immediately and with the free and independent Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus established 36 years ago, they continue to show their determination to eternize the reforms at every possible opportunity.

Great Atatürk,
Your work and thoughts that we understand a little better every day, will forever live in the heart of the Turkish Nation.

Once again we commemorate the Great Leader Atatürk on the 81st anniversary of his passing with respect, longing and gratitude.

EMU GÜNDEM NEWSPAPER SIGNS MEDIA ETHICS COMMITTEE DECLARATION

Gündem Newspaper's General Editor Can Bekcan and Gündem Newspaper Reader Representative and MEC Board Member Dr. Engin Aluç.

Ethical Principles and Peace Journalism were emphasized

MEC Chair Prof. Dr. Bekir Azgın, who was also present at the signing ceremony, highlighted in his opening speech the economic difficulties within the journalism sector. Regardless of the conjuncture relating to the assistance provided to media being cut, Azgın emphasized the importance of professional ethics in the establishment of quality journalism by stating "In order to produce quality journalism in Cyprus, as well as the code of ethics, peace journalism becoming a principle is essential".

Emphasis on MEC's Educational role

Chair of CTJA Sami Özuslu stated that arguments relating to ethics have come to the agenda with traffic and suicide related news, and with the establishment of MEC, the concept of ethics is being discussed in wider dimensions. Özuslu continued by explaining that the framework of principles determined by the MEC, has become the guidebook of journalists, and "the work carried out by the MEC also makes it an educational centre". It teaches the morality of the journalism profession. For this reason with the signing of this declaration, while still at the university level, for the students that will later move on to this profession to be taught these from now is a very logical step". He added that for these steps to be supported by universities, Television, Newspaper and Internet broadcasting centres will achieve an army of ethical journalist candidates.

The Declaration is an example for future EMU Gündem Projects

General Editor of the EMU Gündem newspaper Can Bekcan explained that the signing of the declaration carries important contributions both in the sector and within academia. He continued by stating that this step is an example for future EMU Gündem projects. Bekcan said "I believe that we have taken a very important and beneficial step. We will continue to do everything we possibly can to stay loyal to the code of ethics we have accepted".

The EMU Gündem newspaper, published by the Eastern Mediterranean University's (EMU) Communication Faculty in two languages, signed the Media Ethics Committee's (MEC) Journalism Profession Ethical Principles Declaration. By signing the declaration, the chair of the Cyprus Turkish Journalists Association (CTJA) Sami Özuslu and the Vice Dean of the Communication Faculty and Supervisor of the Gündem newspaper, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Metin Ersoy, established the Gündem newspaper as an example to other university newspapers.

The celebration that took place at the Cyprus Turkish Journalists Association (CTJA) building, was also attended by the MEC Board Members, EMU

“SEMI-PRESIDENTIAL SYSTEM FOR A FEDERAL GOVERNMENT IN A UNITED CYPRUS” IS DISCUSSED AT EMU

The Eastern Mediterranean University Cyprus Policy Centre (EMU-CPC) and the EMU Business and Economics Faculty, Department of Political Science and International Relations collaborated to organize a panel titled “Semi-Presidential System for a Federal Government in a United Cyprus” on Wednesday, the 6th of November 2019. The speakers of the panel were Universitas Foundation President Dr. Nikos Peristianis and EMU Business and Economics Faculty, Department of Political Science and International Relations academic staff member Prof. Dr. Yücel Vural. In his opening speech, panel moderator EMU Business and Economics Faculty, Department of Political Science and International Relations Chair and CPC Director Prof. Dr. Ahmet Sözen presented the speakers and drew attention to the fact that Cyprus is the only European Union member to use a Presidential system.

Presidential and Semi-Presidential Systems

Prof. Dr. Vural and Dr. Peristianis started their presentations by explaining the latest model discussed on the negotiation table according to information they have acquired. They emphasized that executive power is divided amongst the President, Vice President and Council of Ministers in the federal system currently being discussed. The President and Vice President are chosen by a public cross vote and there is a rotating presidency.

The professors also touched upon certain principles that have been agreed upon or are still being discussed such as the ‘minimum single positive vote’.

Prof. Dr. Vural and Dr. Peristianis also spoke about the disadvantages of the presidential system model that is currently being discussed such as the centralization of executive power, political diversity not being represented in the executive organ, political parties being excluded from the executive organ in a multi-party system, the possibility of the ‘minimum single positive vote’ decision making method leading to polarization, ambiguity and uncertainty regarding accountability and the likelihood of disputes between the President, Vice President and Council of Ministers. Prof. Dr. Vural and Dr. Peristianis went on to describe their recommendation of a semi-presidential system which is a combination of the presidential and parliamentary systems. Highlighting the primary characteristics of such a system Prof. Dr. Vural and Dr. Peristianis stated that the President and Vice-President will be in charge of security and external affairs whilst the Prime Minister and the Council of Ministers will be in charge of other federal executive affairs.
